

PUPILS OF GRANGE NATIONAL SCHOOL

By Helen Clancy

Gränge National School was built in 1867 by Count de Salis. It contained two classrooms. In 1932/1933, it was extended by adding two more classrooms, one at either end. It was closed in 1967.

About twenty years ago, Clancy Builders Ltd was cleaning out the basement in the old parochial house in Bruff for the then owners, John and Catherine Sheahan, when they came across some old books, thrown into a skip. Three books were the Registers of Pupils for Grange School. Two of the books contained registration details for almost 600 boys, dating from 1901 to 1967. The other book recorded similar details for more than 300 girls, dating from 1919 to 1967.

Registration details for each pupil included the date of entry to school, name, date of birth, religion, residence, occupation of a parent, etc. Details were recorded in English up to 1929 for the girls and 1932 for the boys; after that they were all in Irish. Sheila Fitzgerald NT helped me to translate Irish language registrations to English and Mary Gallagher to check them again. In a very few instances, owing to translation uncertainty, the Irish names are shown in the lists that follow.

It was very noticeable in the years 1902 to 1906, the numbers of boys who came from Bruff. This was a time when the parents in Bruff withdrew their children from school because of a dispute.

It is also remarkable the number of children that only remained a short time because their parents were mobile owing to the nature of their occupations and the availability of employment, for example policemen, creamery managers and staff employed at the local de Salis, Croker and Caherguillamore Estates.

Most of the children were sons or daughters of farmers or workmen, but also of blacksmiths, butchers, carpenters, chauffeurs, coachmen, coopers, carters, creamery managers, doctors, engine drivers, gardeners, harness-makers, herdsman, land commissioners, policemen, postmen, publicans, shopkeepers, soldiers, stewards, stonemasons, stud grooms, tailors and teachers. Also aoidre, fear caineac, freastaluise.

It is most fortunate that the registers were not lost forever as they contain information that will be of tremendous interest to many, now and into the future. It is likely to be a fascinating exercise for many to identify their own names, names of siblings, friends and perhaps even one or both parents. Therefore, I have decided to list all of the said girls and boys, showing surname, forename and area of residence. There are two lists, one of the girls, and one of the boys. Within each list, registrations are grouped within decades, each name being in the order found in the registers. Extraction of the details was a laborious exercise involving almost 900 pupils, and every care was taken to avoid transcription errors. Mrs Fitzgerald, Mrs Gallagher and I took every precaution that we could to translate details from Irish to English.

Thankfully, the said registers are in safe-keeping and may be inspected in the event that anybody may feel an inaccuracy is to be found in this book. If any such inaccuracies arose from transcription or translation, the editors and I apologise sincerely.
